Great Minds of the Western Intellectual Tradition

Tuesdays, June 2nd and 16th, 11:00am–2:00pm

Philosophy in the West has centered on two basic issues:

- 1.) What is the world and what can we truly know about it? And
- 2.) How should we live? The most brilliant minds in history focused on these questions and their search for answers has left us an intellectual legacy of unsurpassed depth and richness. Through the DVD lecture series Great Minds of the Western Intellectual Tradition, we are learning how different thinkers address these issues in dramatically different ways. Join us for thought-provoking conversation and a delicious lunch as we continue to view and discuss the lectures. All members and guests welcome; Reservations required for each lecture; No need to attend all lectures; Lectures are complimentary; Lunch is no-host.

April Event Recap: The Business of Philanthropy: Creating a Vibrant Community

On April 29, our Business Leadership Committee hosted a luncheon and panel discussion: The Business of Philanthropy: Creating a Vibrant Community. Beth McCaw, past president of The Rainier Club served as moderator. Our esteemed panelists included Jeff Clarke, CEO of Philanthropy Northwest, Tony Mestres, president and CEO of the Seattle Foundation, and Paul Shoemaker, executive connector at Social Venture Partners.

While there was much information to take away, the highlights are:

- Creating and maintaining a vibrant community requires active engagement and participation from the public, private, and philanthropic worlds.
- Building community strength provides an ideal environment for a vibrant business community. There remain tremendous partnering opportunities between the business community and the philanthropic community.

How do you foster cross-pollination between the two worlds?

- It may be worth considering a change of labeling from “not-for-profit” to “for impact.”
- The science of business is applicable to the not-for-profit world; the difference is the mission.
- A general plea for donors to discard an “investor mentality” when contributing to the not-for-profit world, a plea for unrestricted gifts. Rather than looking solely at the level of operational expenses (overhead) consider whether the not-for-profit organization possesses the resources necessary to achieve the goal. Unrestricted gifts to not-for-profit organizations do not mean a lack of accountability.
- There is an opportunity here: the not-for-profit world needs to learn how to tell its story better.

Thank you Beth, Jeff, Tony, and Paul! My guests and I took away valuable insights and information. We had fun, too!

May Event Recap: A Conversation with Jamie Dimon

Jamie Dimon

Today, I got the chance to hear one of the recognized icons of modern American banking, Jamie Dimon, the President and Chief Executive Officer of JPMorgan Chase. Given that my knowledge of banking begins and ends with my debit card, I almost felt guilty taking up a seat at the event. But, I left that room informed, inspired and impressed.

Jamie Dimon

Dimon was candid, open and clearly spoke from the heart. He demonstrated his deep command of industry knowledge, providing insights into how financial policy and global policy are intertwined. His topics included the government's role in cyber security, Greece and the European Union, and the future of virtual currency. Dimon also shared some smart advice for those in the room like me, who are nervously eyeing our 401K balances during these times of marketing volatility. His advice: ignore the undecipherable mysteries of Wall Street and focus instead on the real world strengths of the American economy and the American people.

Phyllis Cambell

Scott Oki and Jamie Dimon

I would just like to close by thanking Rainier Club member Phyllis Cambell, JP Morgan Chase Chairman for the Pacific Northwest; Eric Breidenbach and the Business Leadership Committee. Bringing a speaker of Jamie Dimon's stature to The Rainier Club is a real coup, one we all should be proud of.
